RE: Funding for Resource Conservation Districts

To Whom it May Concern,

Currently the El Dorado County Board of Supervisors annually reviews and approves funding agreements with the Georgetown Divide Resource Conservation District (RCD) and the El Dorado County Resource Conservation District. These agreements provide financial support for the Resource Conservation District programs. Annually the RCD's present new agreements for the Board to review and approve. Past practice has been to change the amount of funding for these agreements based on the change in the County's General Fund assessed value.

The County currently does not have any funding agreement with the Tahoe Resource Conservation District. The Tahoe Resource Conservation District does receive some property tax revenue. The Board of Supervisors does not have any control or input over the distribution of this property tax.
